

Mariners rally past Cincinnati

Seattle wins series in extras; errors down Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) Randy Arozarena hit a game-tying home run in the ninth inning then added a two-run double during a four-run 10th and the Seattle Mariners rallied past the Cincinnati Reds 11-7 on Thursday. In the 10th, designated runner Dylan Moore advanced to third on a fielding error by pitcher Graham Ashcraft then scored on J.P. Crawford's infield single to put Seattle ahead 8-7.

Jake Fraley's grand slam off Eduard Bazarzo put the Reds ahead 7-5 in the eighth. It was his second career grand slam, first since June 5, 2021, against the Los Angeles Angels while a member of the Mariners.

Austin Hays' two-run homer off Emerson Hancock in the first put the Reds ahead 2-0. It was his second homer since coming off the injured list to make his Reds debut on Tuesday.

Luke Raley tied the score 2-2 with a two-run homer off Brady Singer in the fourth. Singer allowed four runs, two earned, in 4 1/3 innings.

The Mariners' scheduled starter, right-hander Bryan Woo, was pushed back to Friday. Hancock was recalled from Triple-A Tacoma to start Thursday.

Corso set to make final pick

Lee Corso's nearly four-decade run on ESPN's "College GameDay" is coming to an end.

Corso, the longtime ESPN broadcaster and folksy former coach widely known for his endearing expressions and elaborate headgear picks, is set to retire after a career with the show that began in 1987, ESPN announced Thursday. His final broadcast will be Aug. 30 — Week 1 of the 2025 college football season — and the network said additional programming to celebrate Corso is also planned.

"My family and I will be forever indebted for the opportunity to be part of ESPN and 'College GameDay' for nearly 40 years," Corso said in a statement to ESPN. "I have a treasure of many friends, fond memories and some unusual experiences to take with me into retirement."

Corso, who turns 90 in August, began his popular headgear segment in October 1996 at a game at Ohio State.

Since then, he has gone 286-144 in 430 selections wearing everything from helmets and mascot heads to dressing up as the Fighting Irish leprechaun from Notre Dame, the Stanford tree and historic figures James Madison and Benjamin Franklin.

"Not so fast, my friend" is one of his most well-known comments and his good humor alongside Kirk Herbstreit, Rece Davis and Desmond Howard and many others going back more than three decades helped make Corso and the show a beloved staple for millions on college football Saturdays.

"Almost 30 years together. I have enjoyed sitting next to you, watching you do your thing," Herbstreit said in a video on social media. "So much fun and so many great moments on the show and off the show. This is a celebration for everything you did. You're an icon and once in a lifetime person. It has been a special time for all of us. You've earned this retirement."

Corso's career has lasted through a health scare in 2009, when he suffered a stroke that left him unable to speak for a while. He returned to "College GameDay" later that year. Though he hasn't joined his colleagues as much on the road in recent years, Corso was at the site of last year's national title game between Ohio State and Notre Dame in Atlanta.

Corso was a college and pro football coach for 28 years before transitioning to broadcasting. He coached 15 years in college at Louisville, Indiana and Northern Illinois.
