

ECTC dual credit fast-tracks high school students' futures

Elizabethtown Community and Technical College is recognizing Dual Credit Week on April 14-18. More than 2,228 high school students enrolled in dual credit courses during the Fall 2024 semester.

“Dual credit students take college-level courses while still in high school, many earning associates degrees before their high school diplomas,” said ECTC Director of Secondary Partnerships Natalie Taylor.

Dual credit courses are half the cost of normal tuition, with some fully covered by the Dual Credit Scholarship and the Work

Ready Kentucky Scholarship. The Dual Credit Scholarship covers two general education courses each year for juniors and seniors to total four courses for each student. The Work Ready Kentucky Scholarship covers two technical education classes each year for four years of high school — a total of eight classes.

Fall 2024 dual credit students saved more than $1 million in tuition and completed 12,291 total credit hours and 508 dual credit courses.

“We see the benefits of this program every day. These students get a jump start on their future at a reduced cost, which is an investment not only in their careers, but also the entire community,” Taylor said.

KWC, Kentucky Sound Stage and Goldenrod announce partnership

Kentucky Wesleyan College in collaboration with Kentucky Sound Stage and Goldenrod Film and Television is excited to launch a new partnership in film and media production.

The Keith and Vickie Sharber Communication Arts Program at KWC is excited to announce enhancements to its overall program to include more courses on film and media production. New course offerings will cover topics including cinematography, sound design, acting, animation and more. By partnering with Kentucky Sound Stage and Goldenrod Film and Television, students will get hands-on learning experiences through collaboration with industry professionals in the production and distribution of media productions.

Communication Arts Program Coordinator Dr. Andrew Bolin says, “Partnerships with organizations like Kentucky Sound Stage are invaluable, giving our students amazing learning opportunities while working alongside professionals in the industry. We are excited for what this provides for our students while at Kentucky Wesleyan but even more excited about the possibilities it presents after graduating with a degree from KWC!”

Kristi Kilday, of Kentucky Sound Stage and Goldenrod Film and Television, emphasizes the importance of investing in future filmmakers.

“Training the next generation of filmmakers is at the core of our mission,” Kilday said. “This partnership goes beyond the classroom, equipping students with the hands-on skills, real-world experience and industry connections essential for success in an ever-evolving film and television landscape. By immersing students in professional productions, we’re helping build a strong, skilled workforce that will shape the future of Kentucky’s growing film industry.”

Jeremy Winton, Kentucky native and co-founder of Kentucky Sound Stage and Goldenrod Film and Television, adds, “Kentucky’s film incentive program is one of the most competitive in the country, attracting major productions and creating incredible opportunities right here at home. By training Kentucky students in film and media production, we’re not just preparing them for careers — we’re ensuring they have a direct path into a thriving industry with real job prospects in an era when Kentucky is becoming a serious player in film and television.”

“I can’t overstate our excitement about this partnership,” says Dr. Stephen Germic, provost and vice president of academic affairs. “Kristi and Jeremy, besides being simply great people, are bringing top-tier experience and professionalism to Owensboro and Kentucky Wesleyan College. We consider ourselves deeply fortunate and look forward to great things as we move forward.”

Students are already taking advantage of internship opportunities beginning this summer with Kentucky Sound Stage. Classes in film and media production could start as soon as fall 2026 at Kentucky Wesleyan College with greater offerings coming in fall 2027. ## RALLY

We described how Kentucky’s Constitution, laws, and legislative process rules actually provide opportunities for public participation in the lawmaking process. We urged the legislature to respect these constitutional and statutory requirements alongside its own procedural rules.

The 2025 legislative session lacks evidence that the General Assembly has taken these recommendations to heart. That’s why we took the message to the Capitol on the last day of the session, to unequivocally affirm that there should be no laws about us, without us. That is the heart of the Democracy Principle, and we will not let the people be ignored.
