

NFL teams look for gold among top free agents

BY ROB MAADDI
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

The Super Bowl champion Seattle Seahawks found their starting quarterback in free agency last year, landing Sam Darnold.

The New England Patriots went from worst to first in the AFC East after signing several key veterans who helped them reach the Super Bowl.

Winning free agency doesn't always translate into success on the field, but the Seahawks and Patriots proved smart spending can make a super difference.

NFL teams can start reshaping their rosters next week.

Agents can begin negotiating with club executives at noon EDT Monday when the legal tampering period opens. Players can't officially sign new deals until the start of the league's new year at 4 p.m. EDT Wednesday.

AVAILABLE?
Cousins and Kyler Murray won't officially be free until they're released by their teams next week but they'll be two of the most accomplished QBs on the market. Four-time NFL MVP Aaron Rodgers hasn't declared his intentions to play another season. If he wants to play, he'll generate interest after helping the Steelers win the AFC North.

If the Dolphins cut Tua Tagovailoa, he'd be an interesting option, especially for the veteran's minimum.

Malik Willis could end up with a lucrative deal from a team that considers him a possible long-term option.

Russell Wilson will be seeking his fourth team in four years.

The Colts placed a transition tag on Daniel Jones so he's not as "free" to go elsewhere because Indianapolis can match any offer he gets.

WHO ARE THE BEST AVAILABLE EDGE RUSHERS?
Pressuring quarterbacks is a priority for every defense and that starts with talented edge rushers.

Trey Hendrickson, a 2024 All-Pro, had 17½ sacks in back-to-back seasons before injuries limited him to seven games last season. He'll have plenty of suitors.

Jaelan Phillips, Odafe Oweh and K'Lavon Chaisson are among the top rushers. Three-time All-Pro Khalil Mack just turned 35 but he can still get after QBs. WHERE'S THE SUPER BOWL MVP GOING?

Kenneth Walker III had 135 yards rushing in Seattle's 29-13 Super Bowl victory over New England last month.

He's expected to get the biggest deal among running backs. Travis Etienne, Rico Dowdle and Tyler Allgeier also will be free agents. The group of runners also includes Rachaad White, Kenneth Gainwell, Brian Robinson and Najee Harris.

Walker could be a fit in Carolina, Arizona, Denver,

Washington and Minnesota.
