"I just feel like we didn't really execute as well as we should have in the first half, a lot of missed opportunities and left some points on the board right before half," Roberts said. "We didn't score. We went for it on fourth down and didn't convert. I thought that was a crucial possession for us, just kind of dug ourselves in a hole that we couldn't get out of." The Colts took a 29-13 lead into the break, but the Mustangs fought back in the second half. DeSales held on to win 39-29. This is the second most points given up by North this season. The defense was led by seniors Zac Mortenson and Joel Fadel. Mortenson is third all-time in tackles in school history

while Fadel is 12th.

The defense gelled immediately under defensive coordinator Randy McGraw. He led the defense to three shutouts on the year and held opponents to 17.4 points per game in his first year leading the defense. "I think the consistency in the coaching staff is big," Roberts said. "We had a lot of turnover from year one to year two. More than likely, everybody from this year is planning on coming back next year, so I think the consistency will be huge. For Coach McGraw himself, the kids trust him. They love playing for him. They have really bought into his defensive style. With him coming back next year, he'll be even better than he was this year. He'll learn a lot from his first year as a play caller. The kids know what to expect, and they know what they're getting out of him."

The 2024 seniors won the most games at North Oldham since the 2016 class. Roberts wants them to be proud of the program and views it as their program. "When they go off and become dads and grandparents, I hope that they can still come back to games or come back to this community and be proud of what they helped get back started," Roberts said. "As long as they leave here being proud of what they started, I want them to have some positive memories that they'll take for the rest of our life. Everybody that plays football at any level will most likely tell you that high school is the most fun that they've had. I hope that these kids can say that they had a lot of fun over the last couple years and they've taken away some lifelong memories and some valuable lessons that will carry them throughout the rest of their life."

"[Crace] is in middle school, but she's like six foot, so I think she'll like to do good below the basket," Gross said. Myers has seen sophomore Regan Wurth step up over the offseason as well. "I think Regan has also been pretty aggressive, which helps us when we're scrimmaging, just her being there on defense kind of pushes us," Myers said. Luehrs feels like Shelmidine has been organized with how he's done thing over the offseason. He also holds a clinic every Sunday to help teach elementary school kids the game. "We did a clinic thing. It's still going on. It's every Sunday, and it's free," Luehrs said. "All the little kids from the elementary schools, they come, and all their support can help us throughout the season. We'll be able to build a better program throughout the years." Myers has also seen Shelmidine put a big emphasis on the future of the program as well. "We're a young team now, but two or three years from now, we're going to have a really good culture and a really good team," Myers said. Gross believes Shelmidine is really good at holding his players accountable and helping them learn. "I think he's good at holding us accountable too," Gross said. "If he notices that we kind of give up, he'll keep pushing us and be like, 'I believe you guys can win, even though no one else does.' He sees potential in us." Shelmidine isn't a big fan of motivational quotes and has seen other coaches make their culture like the back of a business card. He wants to meet his players where they are at. "I think honestly trying to meet them where they're at, having our own expectations as coaches, getting their own feedback as part of what they want out of the program," Shelmidine said. "The leftover like, 'hey, this is what frustrated me before having open conversations,' and being really honest, having a preseason meeting with each individual and going through and just being honest and transparent with them where we're at. As far as how it's coming along, we're a quiet team, and we'll get there by the end of the year. I think some of us just don't have quite the confidence yet or quite understand the role that they're going to play." This will be Shelmidine first exposure to the Oldham County and South Oldham rivalries. North will play Oldham County on Jan. 24 at home and at South Oldham on Jan. 31. "We set goals as a team, and we're in a three-team district and making sure that we're all on the same page with why we're here and just because we're young doesn't mean we can't play the right way," Shelmidine said. "It doesn't mean we can't run the floor and being realistic is important but setting goals, having a goal as a program and knowing that we don't have a banner on the wall here. We have never won a district championship. If you leave here and look at the girls basketball trophy case, it's the saddest thing in the world. We have to understand that, because we're freshman and eighth graders, we can change that."

Each year the Henry County Water District begins its comprehensive unidirectional flushing program throughout the Counties that we provide water to. Our goal is to ensure that water quality is maintained at optimal levels. This is done by properly maintaining the District's water distribution system. The flushing process is when water is moved through a water line at a high velocity so that a "scouring" action is created. This removes any material build-up in the water line. The entire flushing process is critical to the maintenance of water quality to our system. Iron sediments and manganese both occur naturally in water. The sediments do not pose any health concerns but they do affect the taste, clarity and color of the water. We recommend you do not use the water or do any laundry for about an hour if you notice a reddish, yellow or brown tint to your water. If you notice these changes in your water, run your faucets for a few minutes to make sure the water is clear and you may resume normal water usage. We apologize for any inconvenience however this is a mandatory flushing program that MUST be done.
