Excitement was in abundance as Jamie Todd introduced himself to Boyle County.

Todd, who was hired as the school's boys basketball coach last week, met current and prospective players and members of the school community in separate gatherings Thursday, and those meetings only fanned the flames of his enthusiasm.

That enthusiasm was matched by those who helped bring him to Boyle.

"We're excited to have him here, and we know he's going to make a difference," Boyle principal David Christopher said.

Todd, an assistant coach at Berea College for the past four seasons, brings experience at multiple levels of the game, although he has no experience as a head coach above the middle school level.

Boyle athletic director Travis Leffew said Todd also brings the very qualities the school was looking for in its next coach when its hiring committee gathered input from players, parents and others.

"We need somebody to come in and bring the energy, bring the family (atmosphere), bring the team back together," Leffew said. "He expressed all of those things without us saying anything to him."

Todd expressed his gratitude when he addressed the audience at his welcoming reception.

"I want to say how honored and thankful I am to be a part of this program and this kind of legacy," he said. "I'm excited, I'm pumped, I'm ready to go."

Todd met with more than 20 players and other students who are considering playing, and Leffew said that meeting went well.

"They were excited. They were actually keyed in, listening to what he had to say," Leffew said.

Leffew said Todd's enthusiasm came through during and after that meeting.

"I think he got even more amped when he went in the gym and saw about 12 of them playing pickup basketball," Leffew said.
