Tragedy in India

An Air India plane crashed last Thursday, slamming into B.J. Medical School in Ahmedabad, India, sending a fiery explosion into the air—the same school two doctors in Glasgow have ties to. Flight AI171 left shortly before it crashed at 13:39 local time, just 0.9 miles from where the plane took off from the runway at Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel International Airport. Transmitted data in the final moments of the plane’s flight noted it was was approximately 625 feet in the air. According to early reports, 242 passengers were aboard the Boeing 787 Dreamliner destined for London, England. Tragically, all perished except one sole survivor. Vishwaskumar Ramesh, a passenger who was boarded in seat 11A, miraculously walked away with minor injuries. Ramesh told NDTV the day after the crash, “Everything happened in front of my eyes. I thought I would die. The side where I was seated fell into the ground floor of the building. There was some space. When the door broke, I saw that space and I just jumped out.” The plane crashed into the medical school just moments after take-off, carrying 230 passengers and 12 crew members. ABC News reports that hospital officials have stated five medical students inside B.J. medical college and hospital, where the airplane crashed, also died. Many others were injured. The total number of people who perished on the ground hasn’t been confirmed but a couple of reports note five to eight people as of Friday afternoon. Drs. Bharat and Bharati Mody, two local, well-known medical practitioners, completed their residencies at B.J. Medical School. Dr. Bharati Mody attended the medical school. “She went to the medical school and has eaten inside the same cafeteria the plane crashed on top of,” Dr. Bharat Mody said of his wife, Bharati. The day after the crash, Dr. Bharat Mody said they have confirmed that none of their friends or family perished in the wreckage. Bharati’s family resides in Ahmedabad. “India’s Prime Minister Narendra Modi visited the crash site and that makes us feel good because everybody is looking for those who are gone and who are injured,” Dr. Bharat Mody said. Prime Minister Modi visited the site and the sole survivor the same day the tragedy occurred. Other leaders of India did the same. “We are devastated by the air tragedy in Ahmedabad. The loss of so many lives in such a sudden and heartbreaking manner is beyond words,” the prime minister posted on the social media platform, X. “Condolences to all the bereaved families. We understand their pain and also know that the void left behind will be felt for years to come. Om Shanti.” Loved ones continue waiting to understand why and how the plane crashed. As of Friday, the civil aviation minister announced the black box had been found and the investigation will continue. Those who perished were nationals mostly from India, but also Britons, Portuguese, and one Canadian was on board the flight.
