

Library News

By Ashley Norris, Director – Cumberland County Public Library

Hello everyone! So, I finished the book I talked about last week, Where the Rivers Merge by Mary Alice Monroe, and I give it 5 stars. I really enjoyed this book because of the story telling. It is also set in the southern United States, and I love southern settings in books. Basically, it is a coming of age novel, but it does show an adult perspective as well. We have it here at the library, and it is also available on Libby.

This week, our Summer Reading program continues on Thursday, June 19th with Mr. Science himself, Jason Lindsey! His program will take place at 10 AM and is open for everyone. Mr. Science will be doing a variety of colorful experiments such as a colorful twist-er, rainbow streamers, and an explosion of colorful confetti! We hope to see you there.

CCPL would like to announce that we received a $1,000 grant from the Save the Children Foundation, which is based out of Connecticut. This grant is for our summer reading program, which has helped us purchase supplies, presenters, prizes, and snacks. We are thankful to receive this grant because it helps us make our program better.

Have a good week!

First & Farmers National Bank Gives $10,000 to Lindsey Wilson College

Gift celebrates long partnership, supports Lindsey Wilson Fund

First & Farmers National Bank and Lindsey Wilson College have a strong history, and to celebrate that relationship, First & Farmers gave $10,000 on Tuesday, June 3, to the Lindsey Wilson Fund.

The Lindsey Wilson Fund, which supports the Lindsey Wilson mission, helps meet the college’s overall needs, such as resources for student success, faculty development and campus upkeep.

First & Farmers officials said that now is an especially exciting time to support Lindsey Wilson, as it prepares to become Lindsey Wilson University on July 1.

“First & Farmers is very appreciative of the relationship we’ve established with Lindsey Wilson College over the past several years,” said First & Farmers Assistant Vice President/Loan Officer Sarah Jessie. “Much of the bank’s history involves the college, soon to be university. It is a delight to see how both entities have grown and continue to do so.”

First & Farmers Assistant Vice President/Branch Manager/Loan Officer Candace Petty said the bank is “incredibly thankful for Lindsey Wilson College, the amazing students and staff who make it such a special place.”

“As we look ahead, we’re filled with excitement for the bright future of this soon-to-be university and all the opportunities and endeavors that lie ahead,” said Petty. “Here’s to growth, success and continued excellence!”

Lindsey Wilson President William T. Luckey Jr., who has been the college’s eighth president since 1998, said a big reason for Lindsey Wilson’s success is its relationship with Columbia-Adair County.

“Lindsey Wilson is incredibly blessed to enjoy such strong local support,” said Luckey. “It means so much that First & Farmers recognizes Lindsey Wilson as a key member of this community and a critical part of our region’s economy and future.”

The First & Farmers gift was especially meaningful to Assistant Vice President/BSA Officer Hali Lawson, who is a 2016 alumna of the college.

“First & Farmers is truly grateful for the ability to pour into a great establishment such as Lindsey Wilson College,” said Lawson. “As a proud graduate, I can say that they have not only made a difference in my life but the community as well. We look forward to continuing our relationship with them as they become Lindsey Wilson University. Go Blue Raiders!”

Conservation Connection

National Pollinator Week

Wanda J Gilbert
Cumberland County Soil Conservation District

National Pollinator Week is June 16-23, 2025. It is an annual celebration of the many animals that move pollen to help plants make fruit or seeds.

The US Senate, 15 years ago; unanimous approved and designated a week in June as National Pollinator Week. It is a necessary step toward addressing the declining pollinator population.

Many people think of honey bees when the word pollinators are mentioned. But, in fact flies, wasps, moths, birds, bats, hummingbirds, beetles and so many more are also pollinators.

Pollinating animals

travel from plant to plant carrying pollen on their bodies in a vital interaction that allows the transfer of genetic material critical to the reproduction system of most flowering plants – the plants that bring us countless fruits, vegetables and nuts. Provides 1/2 of the world’s oils, fibers and raw materials. Help prevent soil erosion and increase carbon sequestration.

Pollination by honey bees and other insects contribute to nearly $10 billion of crops in 2010. Pollinators provide pollination to over 180,000 different plant species and more than 1,200 crops. That means 1 out of every 3 bites of food you eat is there because of pollinators.

Somewhere between 75% and 95% of all flowering plants on earth need help with pollination – they need pollinators. Pollinators add $217 billion to the global economy and honey bees alone are responsible for between $1.2 to $5.4 billion in agricultural productivity in the United States. In addition to the food that we eat.

Wednesday, June 18th at 2:00pm – Pollinator Workshop at the Soil Conservation office. This workshop is co-sponsored by Cumberland County Conservation District and Tennessee Valley Authority. For more information concerning Pollinators and other environmental topics contact your Soil Conservation office located at 329 Keen Street, Burkesville, KY
