COACH

"Since high school, my twin sister (Jordan) and I have always said we wanted to come back and take over the Bardstown volleyball program," Boggs said. "I always knew that I wanted to be a volleyball coach and inspire the next generation of athletes to have the same love for the game and work ethic that was instilled in me. Being able to give back to the program that shaped me and helped me grow as both a player and person is a dream come true. I don't think it has fully hit me yet that I will be leading the same team I once played for, but I'm excited for the journey ahead." One thing Boggs wants her players to know is that the team will be more like a family. Through the wins and losses that will come, that's something that will not change with this team. "It is so much more than volleyball. "This team is a family," she said.

"I look forward to creating an environment where each girl feels supported, both on and off the court, where we celebrate our victories together and pick each other up after tough losses. "The bonds they make will extend beyond the game, and they will shape

these young ladies into better individuals. "As a former player, it is important to me to instill a winning culture while building on the program's tradition for success. I have high expectations for this program, and I have no doubt that these girls will meet them."
