Schauffele feeling confident and ready to conquer Augusta

Field Level Media

Xander Schauffele said he started thinking about completing the career grand slam before collecting his first two major wins last year at the PGA Championship and The Open Championship. “Believe it or not, it was always a thought before I won any of them,” he told reporters on Monday as Masters week got underway at Augusta National Golf Club. “It’s a lot cooler to be a lot closer to that dream of mine at 31 versus 35 or 36 and not having won one.” Schauffele has already had several close calls with the green jacket, tying for second place in 2019, tying for third in 2021 and finishing in the top 10 in each of the past two years at Augusta, Ga. Ranked No. 3 in the world, Schauffele has gotten off to a modest start this season due to missing two months with a ribcage injury. He finished T12 at the Valspar Championship last month thanks to a final-round 66. His previous best finish in 2025 was a T-30 at The Sentry in early January. He said he’s feeling healthy this week and confident he can compete for another trophy. “Absolutely, yeah. I think I know what I’m capable of when I’m feeling good, when I’m not thinking of anything but getting the ball in the hole,” he said. “It’s been a process to get back to that. I don’t have a ton of reps doing it, but there’s a lot for me to draw back on, sort of previous accomplishments to sort of let that confidence grow.” Schauffele said his strong play at the Valspar Championship gave his confidence another boost.
