FROM PAGE B4

He added: “This is an unpleasant decision.”
At the courthouse, two of the soccer star’s daughters, Gianinna and Dalma Maradona, began to weep.

The decision threw into doubt the timeline of the trial, which was initially expected to last until July. Thursday’s ruling said that a higher court would select the three new judges by lottery “within a reasonable period of time.”

The case accuses Maradona’s medical team of failing to provide adequate care for the soccer star in weeks leading up to his sudden death on November 25, 2020. Maradona died at age 60 from cardiac arrest while recovering from surgery for a blood clot on the brain at a rented home outside Buenos Aires.

Although the case largely hinges on medical technicalities, the biweekly testimonies have also become tabloid fodder — like much in Maradona’s life, which included long spates of drug and alcohol abuse.

Experts have taken the stand to allege that Maradona agonized for 12 hours before his death while his sisters and daughters have tearfully accused his medics of leaving him alone in squalor when he should have been hospitalized.

The defendants, who deny all accusations, were charged with culpable homicide, a crime similar to involuntary manslaughter in that it implies the accused were aware of the risk caused by their reckless conduct and ignored it.

They include Leopoldo Luque, Maradona’s
