the stomach or intestines.

SYMPTOMS TO WATCH FOR

Norovirus often presents suddenly with symptoms like nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and stomach pains.

Other symptoms may include fever, headaches and body aches.

Most people infected with norovirus are likely to feel very ill with continuous vomiting and/or diarrhea, which can cause dehydration. Dehydration is especially common for young children, the elderly and people with other chronic medical conditions.

SYMPTOMS OF DEHYDRATION MAY INCLUDE

- Decreased urination
- Dry mouth and throat
- Feeling dizzy when standing up
- Crying with few or no tears
- Unusual sleepiness or fussiness

HOW NOROVIRUS SPREADS

This virus spreads rapidly and can live on surfaces for long periods of time. The most common ways norovirus is transmitted are:

Having direct contact with someone with norovirus.

Eating food or drinking liquids contaminated with norovirus.

Touching contaminated objects or surfaces and then putting your unwashed fingers in your mouth.

Norovirus is most contagious when you are feeling sick, and even for a few days after you are feeling better.

STEPS TO PREVENT NOROVIRUS

To protect yourself from norovirus, wash your hands thoroughly and often, handle food properly, clean and disinfect surfaces, and wash laundry well.

TIPS FOR HAND WASHING

After using the bathroom or changing diapers.

Before eating, preparing or handling food.

Before giving yourself or someone else medicine.

FOOD HANDLING

Carefully wash fruits and vegetables well.

Cook oysters and other shellfish thoroughly to an internal temperature of at least 145°F.

CLEANING AND DISINFECTING

Hand sanitizer does not work well against norovirus.

Wash your hands with soap and water for at least 20 seconds.

To disinfect, use a chlorine bleach solution and let it sit for at least five minutes.

Wash clothes and linens in hot water on the longest cycle length and machine dry on high.

If you are sick, try to isolate as best you can for up to two days after the symptoms stop. If your symptoms progress, reach out to your primary care physician or seek medical help.
