Competitive procurement will benefit LG&E/KU ratepayers

FRANKFORT — (RFP) for the proposed tainable Energy Assolast week for the Southern Renewable Energy Association (SREA) to the Kentucky Public Service Commission recommends that a competitive procurement process, aligned with utility best practices, will benefit Louisville Gas & Electric and Kentucky Utilities (LG&E/KU)'s ratepay-

Testimony was filed in Case No. 2025-00045 regarding the construction of two approximately 645 MW natural gas combined cycle combustion turbine facilities and a 400 MW, 4-hour battery energy storage system (BESS).

The testimony recommends the Commission issue an Order requiring the following:

LGE&KU issue a Request for Proposals

Written testimony filed BESS in this proceeding; and

> That the Companies study and consider competitively procured resources as the Companies contend with increases in demand and to further diversify the generation portfo-

Attorney Ben Smith testified that a "diverse, competitively procured generation portfolio will provide the best outcome for ratepayers and an over reliance on commodity-based energy generation — such as natural gas fired generation — risks unforeseen price changes and under-appreciated operations concerns which risk costs and reliability to a greater degree than broadly assumed."

Smith's experience includes prior work for the North Carolina Sus-

Local farm among recipients from ciation, where his team advocated for policies to enable marketplaces and competition in North Carolina to allow for a least cost energy generation mix among the state's regulated utility territories.

Competition, SREA Executive Director Simon Mahan said, will protect ratepayers in the long run. "Kentuckians deserve the best value from their power companies,' Mahan said. "LG&E/ KU should borrow best practices from states like Georgia and North Carolina and competitively bid its power plants. Competition protects system reliability, and ratepayers' pocketbooks.'

Brad Stiner said he would also like to see the garden include fruit trees and berries in addition to vegetables.

The council also discussed a proposal to add an occupational tax and a city tax on alcoholic beverages sold within the city. City attorney Lizzy Coulter is to check into the requirements and draft an ordinance for the council's consideration. The council also inquired into the legalities of the city holding a rummage sale or auction to sell some surplus items stored in City Hall.

Mayor Wanda Thompson asked for volunteers to help with food preparation and concession stand sales for the upcoming horse show on Aug. 2 and the annual Sticktight concert on Aug. 9 at the park. What to serve was also discussed.

In other business, the council discussed the need to patch Highland Park Road and the need for the city to purchase some traffic cones. There was also discussion regarding the improper closing of Circle Drive and Sportsmans Lane during the Memorial Day Homecoming Festival. The two are city streets but were closed off by residents during the festival. The council agree to inform residents that those are not private roads and cannot be closed off by the residents.

The next meeting of the Willisburg City Council will be Thursday, July 17, at 7 p.m. The city budget will be presented at that
