More than 67,000 cases of Power Stick deodorants are being pulled off the shelves across the country.

A Food and Drug Administration report says the deodorant manufacturer, A.P. Deauville, made the voluntary recall July 10. The company says the product did not meet quality and safety standards but did not name the specific issue.

The recalled deodorants include the Power Stick for Her roll-on deodorant with Powder Fresh scent, the Power Stick Invisible Protection roll-on deodorant with Spring Fresh scent and the Power Stick Original Nourishing Invisible Protection roll-on deodorant.

The products were sold nationwide, including by such retailers as Walmart and Amazon. There has been no word of injuries resulting from using the deodorants.

The FDA recommends discarding recalled products or returning them to the retailer where they were purchased.

As Kentucky Republicans vie for office, Trump and McConnell loom over the races

Morris calls for Republican Party to rescind lifetime award for McConnell

By McKenna Horsley
Excerpt From
The Kentucky Lantern

SHEPHERDSVILLE, Ky., June 30 — With a third Republican candidate entering the race for Kentucky's open U.S. Senate seat next year, the jockeying for President Donald Trump's backing is on.

While neither Trump nor longtime Republican U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell will be on Kentucky's ballot in 2026, their presences loom large over the next election cycle in the Bluegrass state.

Nate Morris, a Lexington businessman, appeared before a crowd of more than 1,200 with Turning Point USA founder and conservative media personality Charlie Kirk in the Bullitt County seat Monday morning. Morris announced his candidacy last week on Donald Trump Jr.'s podcast.

Morris, along with Republicans U.S. Rep. Andy Barr and former Attorney General Daniel Cameron, are hoping to succeed McConnell, who announced he would not seek reelection earlier this year. McConnell's rise to power in 1984 ushered in the Republican Party of Kentucky's rise to political dominance in the commonwealth. However, McConnell has lost voters' approval in recent years.

Morris hopes to court Republican voters who are unhappy with McConnell's tenure. During the Monday rally, Morris called on the Republican Party of Kentucky to deny McConnell a lifetime achievement award.

Morris also took issue with a letter from the state Republican party to candidates ahead of the annual Lincoln Day Dinner set for August. Morris said the letter asked candidates to not "speak ill of Republicans that are not running for office." That would include McConnell, who Morris added is set to receive a lifetime achievement award during the dinner.

"I am calling on the Republican Party of Kentucky to rescind the lifetime achievement award for Mitch McConnell," Morris said to applause from the crowd. "And I'm asking the other two guys in the race, Daniel Cameron and Andy Barr, to do the same thing. And if they won't, I want to hear why."

Morris dropped his first TV ad Friday morning, saying he is "here to take out the trash," including McConnell's. Morris, who rides a garbage truck and picks up trash in the ad, founded waste and recycling company Rubicon.

After the rally, a spokesman for the Republican Party of Kentucky told the Kentucky Lantern that the letter "was simply a request — not an attempt to police candidates' speech." Political parties often do not back candidates until a nominee is chosen for a general election.

Kirk throughout the rally criticized McConnell, particularly for not backing Trump in the aftermath of the Jan. 6, 2021, attack on the U.S. Capitol. McConnell, as the Senate Republican leader, later called the event "a violent insurrection for the purpose of trying to prevent the peaceful transfer of power after a legitimately certified election." McConnell disputed Trump's claims that he won the 2020 election. has been an opponent of U.S. isolationism and a strong supporter of Ukraine in its war with Russia, in contrast to the president on the campaign trail last year. McConnell also voted against confirming Trump's Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth and Health Secretary Robert F. Kennedy Jr. Trump has criticized McConnell multiple times over the years, even though McConnell played a key role in confirming the Supreme Court justices who have been upholding some of Trump's controversial actions.

"He's willing to actually call out the McConnell mafia that have been running this state for so long," Kirk said of Morris.

The Republican candidates have been trying to distance themselves from McConnell in hopes that a Trump endorsement in Kentucky — a state that the president has carried since the 2016 election — would be the seal of approval for the state's GOP voters.

Morris doubts that his McConnell bashing will turn away Kentucky Republicans or hurt his campaign.

"Look, I think that the numbers speak for themselves. I've seen them," Morris told reporters. "Mitch McConnell is one of the least popular politicians in the history of America, and I think here in Kentucky, I don't think it's any different."
