

Not your normal Days of Our Lives Recap

You know how most people are thawing out turkeys and things for Thanksgiving?

Dr. Rolf is thawing out something or someone-possibly Stefano? Does he have Stefano tucked away in a freezer next to a bag of corn and crinkle cut fries? He specializes in freezing people and thawing them out later, while giggling, so they can go about their business.

I don't know, but the Salemites are sure dropping hints that Stefano is "out and about" and he's been deceased for five years.

Tony DiMera was kidnapped and taken to the family crypt. Then his sis, Kristen DiMera was kidnapped at Statesville Prison and also taken to the family crypt. E.J. talks to himself about his family finally reuniting. Possibly his brother Stefan and various as sundry other missing family members, whose disappearance nobody really looks into, will show up too.

Dr. Marlena Evans was hospitalized with heart arrhythmia and tests determined she has Lyme disease. She recovers in her hospital bed with not a hair out of place and in full make-up. Of course, Salem University Hospital is pathetic and habitually misdiagnoses cases, so she may have Chicken Pox or a kidney stone.

Much of the week has been focused on the gala honoring the opening of the Dr. Tom Horton Free Clinic as people reminisce, like when Addie was near death with an illness and recovered only to be hit by a car but tossed her baby Hope through the air and she was caught by Hope's daddy Doug, who went on to marry Addie's daughter Julie.
