SENATE PRESIDENT ROBERT STIVERS ON GOVERNOR’S DATA CENTERS EXECUTIVE ORDER

FRANKFORT, Ky (Aug. 6, 2026) — The following is a statement from Senate President Robert Stivers, R-Manchester, regarding the governor’s executive order on data centers today.

"It's about time the governor came around to the legislature's way of thinking. His executive order largely echoes the same principles I outlined in my recent opinion piece: if data centers require new infrastructure, the developers, not Kentucky ratepayers, should bear the cost.

“If we're going to establish a lasting framework for data centers, it should be done the right way, through the legislative process, with input from all involved parties. That's how you produce sound policy that protects ratepayers, respects communities and provides certainty for businesses investing in Kentucky."

“Unlike an executive order issued for headlines, the General Assembly is taking a deliberate approach. We're coordinating with our federal delegation, including Congressman Brett Guthrie, to ensure Kentucky's policies complement, not conflict, with federal efforts.

“While the governor has finally embraced the right premise, this is more political theater than public policy. The governor should spend more time in Kentucky than in South Carolina or New Hampshire where he’s obviously been more focused on improving his feeble presidential ambitions.

“I would like to thank the governor for drawing attention to where we have been all along.”
