CHURCH NEWS

Blanket Creek

Scripture 1 John 5-13:15. "Yes We Know." Bro. Greg was asked to preach a funeral of a young man. When he went to visit the family the mother ran out asking "Where is my son?" She shared with him that the last words her son said to her before he walked out the door and was killed in an automobile accident were "Why didn't you take me to church?" What a hard funeral that was hard to preach. But only God knows where that young man is. So please take your children to church! Please pray for the families of Bernadine Cooper, May Ann Ammerman, Teddy Hurst, Jim Hamilton, Connie Bressler and Jerry Beagle.

Bro. Mark's message was from 2 Chronicles 7:14.

Do we need healing in our land? How do we get there if we want to see this happen?

If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land.

Are you God's people? Has God called you? Humble yourself acknowledging your need for God. Focus on spiritual restoration.

Trinity Southern Baptist

This weekend, our church launched a new sermon series titled "Welcome to the Ransomed," inspired by Isaiah 35:8-10 and rooted in Daniel Payne's powerful message calling believers to live holy lives. The service was a meaningful time of worship and celebration, marked by our fourth baptism of the year and the joy of seeing one individual make a decision for salvation.

We are also excited to be hosting our 6th Annual Night to Shine this Friday, February 13th. Night to Shine is a special event honoring individuals with special needs. Our entire community is invited to be part of the celebration by lining the streets from our church to the red light and down Main Street toward the bridge. At 5:20 p.m., we'll form a mini parade to cheer on our honored guests as they head towards Broken Arrows Farm in party buses at 5:30 p.m. We look forward to celebrating together!

Lawmakers consider churches' affordable housing

Capitol Update

FRANKFORT — A bill that would enable religious institutions to build small-scale affordable housing units advanced from the House Local Government Committee on Feb. 3.

Rep. Michael Sarge Pollock, R-Campbellsville, is the primary sponsor of the bipartisan legislation, House Bill 333.

Pollock said the Sisters of Loretto, a Catholic women's organization, reached out to him and Sen. Jimmy Higdon, R-Lebanon, about a plan to renovate an empty structure into short-term housing.

"The conversation created an opportunity to share their story, and their input made it clear there is both a need and opportunity here in Kentucky," Pollock added.

Under HB 333, faith-based organizations would be allowed to build small-scale affordable housing up to 24 units on the parcel or contiguous parcel owned by the religious institution within a half mile of the development.

The legislation "also ensures housing remains affordable for at least 15 years," Pollock said.

Pollock said the legislation would implement additional safeguards to prevent clustering or large-scale development on properties that are owned prior to Jan. 1, 2021.

Additionally, HB 333 would expand a religious institution's ability to operate modest-sized homeless shelters, including cooling or warming centers, in industrial zoned areas, Pollock added. These facilities would be required to follow health and safety regulations.

Pollock told the committee the bill matters because homelessness is a real issue in Kentucky, and more affordable housing options can help.

"Faith communities in Kentucky are eager to play a constructive role in addressing homelessness and housing affordability," he said.

Rep. Sarah Stalker, D-Louisville, is a co-sponsor of the legislation. During a discussion on the bill, Stalker said she is under the impression the legislation will have a positive impact on the property tax base.

"I want to make sure that other folks are clear, and that I am clear on this, that the property tax base will only be impacted in a positive manner because of this bill," she said. "Meaning that if somebody had a building they were no longer using, or sitting on a church property — they were not paying taxes on that. Whereas if they renovate that and now we have affordable housing, they will be paying into that the tax base. Is that correct?"

Pollock said Stalker was correct.

The House Local Government Committee voted unanimously to send HB 333 to the House floor for consideration.
