bless you.

Third, determine that, "Today I will do something for someone else." Get outside of yourself. Maybe that is the reason that "It's a Wonderful Life" is one of my favorite movies and I still shed tears in the conclusion when all the neighbors come to share with George Bailey in his hour of need. The best way to stop feeling sorry for yourself is to start feeling sorry for someone else.

Fourth, determine to bury any resentments. Collect stamps, baseball cards, or business cards but do not collect resentments. Love, forgive, make amends, pray for — it is your choice.

Fifth, determine that "Today, I will trust God." Trust God to meet your needs. There are two days in each week you are not to worry about: Yesterday and tomorrow. Yesterday is past and gone forever. Tomorrow has not arrived. Live today! It is all you have or may ever have.
