"This is a headline, but more than that, this is my husband and the one my boys' world revolves around," she wrote.

She thanked everyone for the support that her family has received during this difficult time.

Last Thursday, Branch was indicted on charges of murder of a peace officer (first responder), tampering with physical evidence and with being a convicted felon in possession of a firearm, according to Warren Circuit Court records.

Branch also had an active arrest warrant out of Tennessee for a probation violation, according to the Sumner County Sheriff's Office. He had been sentenced to probation last year after being convicted on charges of fraud and impersonation, but a warrant was issued for him in August for violating the terms of his probation. Authorities have not described what constituted the probation violation.

Emonnie Branch of Portland, Tennessee, was indicted Thursday in the murder of KSP Trooper Hayden Phillips on Monday.

Branch was held without bond at the Warren County Detention Center. He was arraigned Monday at Warren Circuit Court.

The funeral for Officer Phillips was held Sunday at E.A. Middle Arena, Western Kentucky University Campus in Bowling Green.

Interment followed at Glasgow Municipal Cemetery.

Domestic Violence Awareness Month

This year, the Governor launched an interactive dashboard that shares domestic violence data. The website allows Kentuckians to more easily view data on offenders and learn more about domestic violence shelters and support services. Previously, Gov. Beshear had signed legislation requiring the commonwealth to produce an annual report on domestic violence-related data.

One of the state's leading partners in the fight against domestic violence is "ZeroV," (formerly the Kentucky Coalition Against Domestic Violence), a statewide coalition dedicated to creating safe lives and thriving futures for survivors of intimate partner violence and their children. ZeroV and its coalition of domestic violence programs provided supportive services to nearly 14,500 survivors of domestic violence in fiscal year 2026. Of those survivors, more than 1,400 adults and 900 children received emergency shelter services.

Each year, the First Lady partners with ZeroV to host Shop & Share, a one-day donation drive for domestic violence shelters across Kentucky, providing critical supplies, such as food, diapers and other essentials. She noted that next year's event will be held Feb. 13.
