Hurst was initially hired by the county in September 2024 and became the full-time animal control officer in June. He was recognized by the fiscal court in October for handling a local homeowner's deceased pet when the homeowner was out.

The magistrates voted to hire Cody Stumph as Hurst's replacement as animal control officer, effective Jan. 5, at $20 an hour.

Cutts replaced Amber Sweetman as the director of the animal shelter. Sweetman was terminated in October 2025, while she was still in the probationary period. Sweetman formally appealed her termination. At a special-called meeting in November, she challenged the accuracy of the information the court had used in her termination.

She said the allegations against her were never properly investigated and asked to be reinstated.

"I did what was best for the animals," Sweetman said.

After she finished, the fiscal court went into executive session, but no action was taken. County officials declined to discuss Sweetman's termination with the Harrodsburg Herald.

The magistrates voted to hire Sweetman initially as a part-time animal shelter attendant in November of last year.

In May 2025, they voted to hire Sweetman as interim animal control director.

In October, the fiscal court voted to terminate Sweetman with immediate effect.

They also subsequently voted to change the animal shelter's Facebook page to informational-only.

Fiscal Court Hears Citizens' Data Center Concerns

The Mercer County Fiscal Court heard citizen comments about the possibility of a large-scale data center in the community.

Citizens who did not get a chance to speak at last week's meeting of the Harrodsburg-Mercer County Joint Planning and Zoning Commission addressed the fiscal court at their regular meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 13.

Laura Gilbert Duhamel spoke for herself and Jane Royalty Gilbert, who both live on Handy Pike. Duhamel passed out information for magistrates. She said she is concerned about the possible impact a data center could have on their neighborhood.

"This area is zoned A-1 agriculture," Duhamel told the magistrates. She said visitors come to Mercer County to get away from the city.

"They come here for our rural charm and small town atmosphere," Duhamel said. That rural charm could be endangered by a data center, which she called "a monstrosity of asphalt, concrete and never-ending noise."

She said county taxpayers would incur costs to support the data center.

"Please conserve and preserve our rural community," Duhamel said.

Betty Dean said a data center was inconsistent with adopted land-use policies, especially with land zoned for agriculture. Dean said there was an alternative at the Wilkinson Farm megasite, which is now known as the Bluegrass Innovation Gateway.

She was concerned with the possibility of rezoning agricultural land to allow a data center to be built.

"We would be allowing that kind of heavy industrial usage on prime, prime farmland," Dean said.

According to Kylie Donnelly, acting director of planning and zoning, no one has applied to build a data center anywhere in Mercer County.

"I have it on good authority."

The adjusted deadline for the two-percent discount expired Dec. 31, 2025. The deadline for the face value amount expires Jan. 31, 2026.

Other deadlines:

- Five-percent penalty: Feb. 1 through Feb. 28, 2026.
- 21 percent penalty: March 1, 2026, through May 15, 2026.

An additional penalty applies for payments made after May 15, 2026.

At the close of business on May 15, tax bills are transferred from the Mercer County Sheriff's Office to the Mercer County Clerk's Office. Under state law, unpaid tax bills will become a certificate of delinquency and create a lien against the property. Interest begins to accrue on the total due at the rate of 1 percent per month. A 10 percent county clerk fee and a 20 percent county attorney fee are also added to the total due, according to the Kentucky Department of Revenue's website. The county attorney is required to send a notice to the delinquent taxpayers and, if necessary, another notice. Delinquent taxpayers can enter into installment payment plans with the county attorney, according to the state.

Beginning in mid-July, county clerks offer the certificates of delinquency for sale to third-party purchasers. These sales run through the latter part of October, with the majority occurring from mid-July through the end of August, according to the state. The specifics about each county's sale, along with a listing of each certificate of delinquency, are required to be advertised in the local newspaper at least 30 days prior to the tax sale date. The certificates of delinquency are also listed on the county clerk's website at least 30 days prior to the sale.

If a certificate of delinquency is sold to a third-party purchaser, the property owner must then work with the third party to arrange for payment of the delinquency. There will be substantial additional fees applied to the total due by the third-party purchaser. An installment payment plan can be requested of a third-party purchaser.

County Clerk Chris Horn said his office is working with the state on delinquent taxes. At the Mercer County Fiscal Court's regular meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 13, Horn said he hopes to hold one sale for delinquent taxes this year.

At Tuesday's meeting, the fiscal court approved the county clerk's $6.5 million budget for 2026 as well as the clerk's 2026 salary cap.

The magistrates also approved the $1.8 million budget for the Mercer County Sheriff's Office for 2026, as well as the 2026 salary cap for the sheriff's office and the state advancement. Brooke Williams of the MCSO said they added items to cover the costs of school tax collection and inmate transport. Because of the effort to recall the school tax last year, county officials say it will take longer to collect it.

Comm.

"We're certainly moving in the right direction," Evans said.

He said the industrial development authority hosted a "charette" — a master-planning exercise involving all project stakeholders — last week at Campbellsville University — Harrodsburg. He said the authority will be doing some cleanup at the BIG site, "dressing the property up a little bit" to get it ready to present to potential tenants.

"I appreciate everything you have done," said Mayor Williams.

"Great strides have been taken," said the mayor, who called the charette "an amazing process."

"I think it's going to be a tremendous benefit to the community and the state as a whole," Williams said.
