First Kentucky Cow-Calf Summit will be on Oct. 29 in Bowling Green

Extension Notes

Mercer County Cooperative Extension Agent for Agriculture

The University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service invites cattle producers from across the state to attend the first Kentucky Cow-Calf Summit on Thursday, Oct. 29, at the L.D. Brown Ag Expo Center in Bowling Green.

Under the theme "Building Opportunity," the summit will give cow-calf producers practical information and a forum to explore financing, land access, succession planning and strategic growth. The summit grew out of the 2025 Mid-South Beef Leadership Conference, where Kentucky and Tennessee producers, county agents and industry leaders identified access to land and involving the next generation in farming as two pressing concerns for the beef industry.

Featured speakers include Steve Isaacs, Ph.D., UK Extension farm management specialist, who will discuss how goal setting connects daily decisions with a producer's larger purpose; Chris Cooper of Central Kentucky Ag Credit, who will offer a lender's perspective on barriers to entry, business growth and financing opportunities; and John Genho of Eldon Farms in Woodville, Virginia, who will share strategies for improving operational efficiency and creating opportunities for long-term success.

The program will also feature a producer panel titled "Building Opportunity: Producer Perspectives," interactive producer exchange sessions, an Operation Opportunity workshop and the UK Beef Extension Awards Luncheon.

Although the program is designed with cow-calf operations in mind, organizers encourage all Kentucky cattle producers, regardless of herd size or experience level, to attend. The summit may be especially useful for beginning and first-generation cattle farmers, producers preparing for succession or bringing the next generation into an operation, and those seeking to expand or gain access to land.

Registration and coffee begin at 8:30 a.m. CT, followed by the program at 9 a.m., at the L.D. Brown Ag Expo Center, 406 Elrod Road, Bowling Green, Ky. The summit will conclude at 4 p.m.

Registration is $30 per person or $50 per couple and includes lunch. Register online at <https://tinyurl.com/v9bmwvks>. For more information, contact Michelle Padgett, Extension beef associate, at michelle.padgett@uky.edu. You may also contact your Mercer County Extension Office.
