Remembering Ava Woodcock

On April 7, 2026, Ava Woodcock and her soon-to-be-born daughter, Nevaeh, were killed in a senseless act of domestic violence. In the midst of that tragedy, Ava left behind her other daughter, Chloe. As October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month, below is a statement from her family.

There are moments in life that forever reshape us, and losing our daughter is one of those moments for our family. She was a radiant presence full of warmth, compassion, and a spirit that touched everyone who had the privilege of knowing her. She brought joy into every room. Ava was not only a daughter, but a source of strength, laughter, and unconditional love.

Her passing has left a profound emptiness in our hearts, one that words can scarcely describe. The grief we carry is deep and constant. Yet, even in the midst of this pain, we hold tightly to the beauty she brought into the world. One of the greatest reflections of that beauty is her precious three-year-old daughter: a little girl who carries her mother's best qualities in every smile, every expression, and every spark of curiosity. She is a living reminder of her mother's love, her gentleness, and her light. Through her, we see pieces of our daughter every day, and that brings us both comfort and heartache in equal measure.

Ava's kindness did not end with her passing. It continues to ripple outward. Ava was a organ donor touching families who now have renewed hope because of her.

We are profoundly grateful for the care, respect, and compassion shown to our family throughout this difficult time. As we navigate our grief, we hold close the knowledge that her spirit lives on, not only in our memories and in the beautiful child she leaves behind, but also in the lives of those she helped heal.

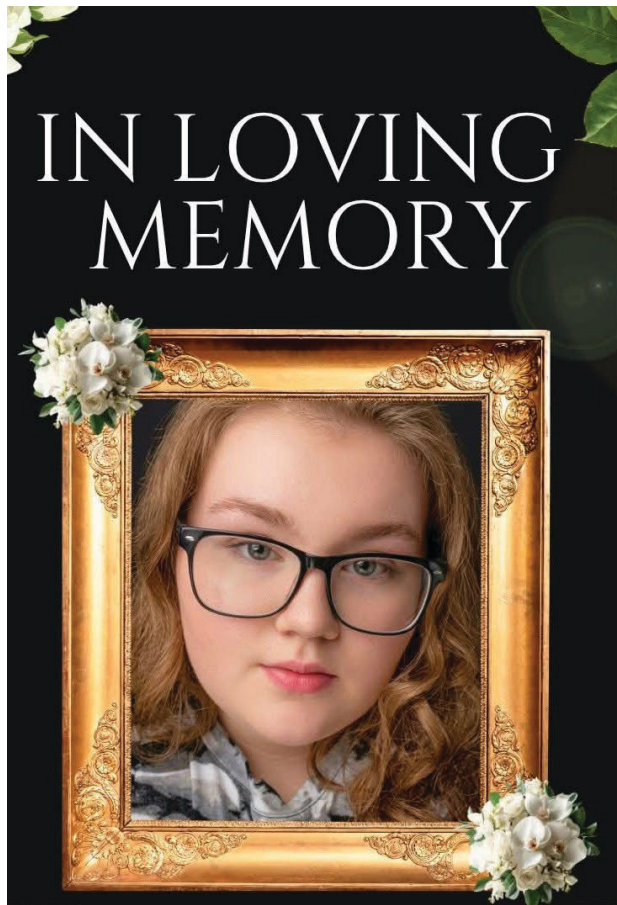

Ava's legacy is one of love, generosity, and enduring impact. She will forever be remembered, cherished, and honored by all who knew her and by those whose lives she saved.

With heartfelt gratitude,

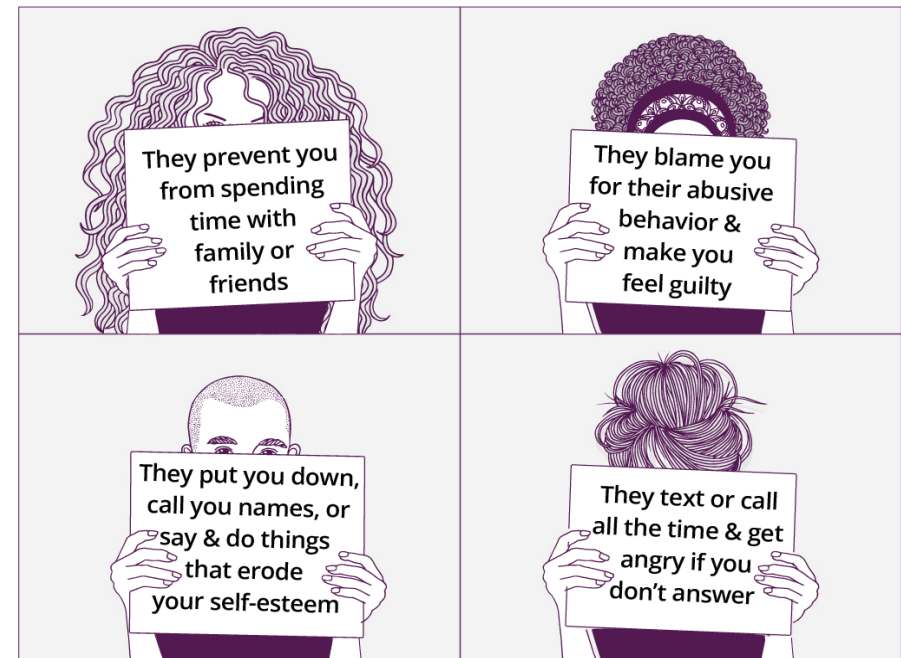

Wes and Beth Woodcock, Ava's father and mother

Editor's Note: Ava's daughter, Chloe, is currently being raised by Ava's brother Gabriel, who stepped in to care for Chloe after Ava's passing. Chloe still has a Go-Fund Me available. Anyone considering donating can visit the Go-Fund Me site at <https://gofund.me/e2a3cc3dd>.
