Completed absentee ballots must reach the county clerk's office by 6 p.m. on Election Day. A postmark alone does not meet the deadline. Ballots may be mailed to the clerk's office or returned to the ballot drop box inside the courthouse at 101 N. Main St. The county's voting notice lists courthouse office hours as 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Voters with a medical emergency or questions about an outstanding absentee ballot should contact the clerk's office.

In Nicholasville, Clancy Kemp and Alex Carter are running for mayor. Voters may choose one.

Eight candidates are listed for Nicholasville's four city commission seats: Peter Sutherland, Bethany Davis Brown, Caitlin Lamb, Patty Grose Teater, Johnny Templin, April Whitaker, Charles "Dexter" Knight and Betty Black. Voters may select up to four.

Eight candidates are seeking six Wilmore City Council seats: Wade A. Mitchell, Sharon Moore, Kim Deyer, Andy Bathje, Jim Brumfield, Allison Clour, David R. Riel and Wes Metcalfe. Voters may select up to six.

The municipal races are nonpartisan. Eligibility to vote in a city election depends on residence within that city's boundaries.

Two Jessamine County Board of Education races appear on the sample ballot. Michael Foster is the only printed candidate for the 4th Educational District. Steven Scrivner and Brandon Wides are running in the 5th Educational District. Voters may choose one candidate in their applicable school board district.

No candidate's name is printed for county surveyor. The ballot provides a write-in space.

Voters also will elect a magistrate and constable in their respective magisterial districts, choosing one candidate for each office.

In the 1st Magisterial District, Republican Jared Madison Cobb and Democrat Ashley Curtis are running for magistrate.

Republican Ernest "Ernie" Simpson is the only printed candidate for constable. The district includes East Nicholasville Nos. 1 and 2, West Nicholasville Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and Keene Place Nos. 1 and 2.

School board and magisterial district boundaries differ, so a voter's district number for one office may differ from the other.

Four Kentucky House races appear across Jessamine County's precincts. Each voter will vote in the race for their applicable House district.

In the 39th District, Republican Matt Lockett faces Democrat Ryan Stanford. Gullette III is the only printed candidate for district judge in the 13th Judicial District's 1st Division. Janet C. Booth is the only printed candidate in the 2nd Division. Voters may select one candidate in each judicial race.

Constitutional Amendment 1 appears on ballots countywide. The proposal would amend Section 77 of Kentucky's Constitution to prohibit a governor from granting pardons or reprieves or commuting sentences during the period beginning 60 days before a gubernatorial election and ending the fifth Tuesday after that election. A "yes" vote approves the amendment; a "no" vote rejects it.

Voters should review every part of their ballot. A straight-party selection applies to partisan contests and does not cast votes in nonpartisan city, school board or judicial races or on the constitutional amendment. Those contests require separate selections.

Voters should bring an acceptable photo ID, such as a Kentucky driver's license or another qualifying identification document. Those without qualifying photo identification should contact the clerk's office or ask an election worker about the applicable procedures.

For questions about voting, ballot eligibility or absentee ballots, contact the Jessamine County Clerk's Office at 859-885-4161, extension 4. Voters also can check their registration information and find election resources at GoVote.ky.gov•.
