Concertgoers are encouraged to secure tickets early as strong demand is expected, and tickets are likely to sell quickly.

“We are incredibly proud to present one of the most exciting shows we have ever brought to Beaver Dam Amphitheater,” said Heath Eric, President and CEO of The Eric Group, the venue’s management firm. “Wynonna Judd and Melissa Etheridge are two of the most iconic and influential women in the history of music. Bringing these powerhouse artists together on one stage at The DAM will create a dynamic, unforgettable night for fans. Events like this not only deliver incredible live music experiences but also drive tourism and economic impact for our region. It is going to be a night of true diversity, energy, and DAM good times. Trust us, just buy the DAM tickets.”

The Raised On Radio Tour celebrates the music and moments that shaped two legendary careers. Both artists credit the power of radio and the songs they grew up listening to as the foundation for their artistry.

“I’ve spent my entire adult life on-stage, but before any of that, I was just a girl sitting close to a radio speaker, hanging on every word,” said Wynonna Judd. “Raised On Radio isn’t just a tour name, it’s my roots and wings. The radio was my teacher, my comfort, and my escape. The songs playing through that radio shaped me as a dreamer and an artist.”

Melissa Etheridge echoed the sentiment, recalling the diverse musical influences that helped shape her sound.

“I was literally raised on the radio,” said Melissa Etheridge. “Growing up in Leavenworth, I listened to stations that played everything from rock and soul to R&B and country. It helped shape me into the versatile writer and musician I am today.”

A Rock & Roll Hall of Fame nominee, Etheridge stormed onto the rock scene with her confessional songwriting and unmistakable vocal rasp, delivering hits such as “Bring Me Some Water,” “Come to My Window,” and “I’m the Only One.” She continues to evolve creatively with new music from her upcoming 2026 album Rise, which includes a collaboration with Chris Stapleton.

Judd, a five-time Grammy winner and Country Music Hall of Fame member, first captured the world’s attention as one half of the legendary duo The Judds before launching a wildly successful solo career. Her unmistakable voice powered iconic hits including “No One Else on Earth,” “Tell Me Why,” and “I Saw the Light.”

Together, these two trailblazing artists will bring fans an electrifying evening of legendary songs, powerful vocals, and unforgettable performances.

In addition to the music, the tour will support two important causes. For every ticket sold, Etheridge and Judd will each donate $1 to charity. Proceeds will benefit The Etheridge Foundation, which supports research into treatments for opioid use disorders, and St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital, helping continue its lifesaving work for children and families around the world.

The Raised On Radio Tour includes stops across the United States, including San Diego, Reno, Atlanta, Seattle, Rogers, and more, before arriving at Beaver Dam Amphitheater on August 8.

Western Kentucky Film Commission hosts info session

GREENVILLE—Officials, business leaders, and filmmakers gathered March 16 at Felix E. Martin, Jr. Hall for an information session on the West Kentucky Film Commission, which aims to attract film and media productions to western Kentucky, including Muhlenberg County communities like Central

City and Greenville. The commission works alongside the Kentucky Entertainment Incentive, which helps productions recoup 30–35 cents per dollar spent locally, benefiting hotels, restaurants, and other businesses. Muhlenberg County has a legacy in entertainment, producing talents from Warren

Oates and James Best to Miles Heizer and Elijah Samek. The commission plans to market the region, support local filmmakers, and foster a creative workforce, giving residents opportunities to pursue careers in film close to home while boosting the local economy.
