YELLOW BANKS OPENS Concerts on the Square Series

Staff Report

GREENVILLE — Yellow Banks kicked off Greenville’s 2026 Concerts on the Square series Saturday night, drawing music fans to Veterans Plaza for the first of six free summer concerts. The Kentucky-based country band entertained the crowd with a mix of original music and country favorites as families gathered in downtown Greenville for an evening of live entertainment. The popular summer series will continue over the coming weeks, with five concerts remaining this season, offering more opportunities for residents and visitors to enjoy free live music in the heart of Muhlenberg County.

recently worked with the Drakesboro City Council to rename the city’s fountain in honor of Brake, recognizing his service and commitment to the community. The action followed requests from residents who wanted to acknowledge the mayor’s role in revitalizing the city.

While the city’s Pickers Memorial area remains a source of pride, the former fountain has been converted into a landscaped flower bed that will be decorated throughout the year. Additional improvements are also planned, including the installation of a flagpole and other enhancements to the area.

Residents said Brake’s willingness to listen to citizens, work collaboratively with the council and focus on community improvements has earned him widespread respect and appreciation.

Supporters say they are proud of the progress taking place in Drakesboro and look forward to additional beautification projects planned for the community in the coming months.
