Neon Outpost Raises $250 to Help Launch Hopeway Bridge

On June 14, Neon Outpost hosted a Kentucky-focused songwriter round at The Green Light Bar in Nashville, Tennessee, raising $250 for Hopeway Bridge, a new nonprofit preparing to serve individuals and families experiencing temporary financial hardship in Muhlenberg County.

The benefit was organized by Neon Outpost founder and Muhlenberg County native Cole Greenwalt, who now lives in Nashville and is using his growing songwriter round to give back to the community he calls home.

The money was raised through cash donations, a portion of Neon Outpost merchandise sales, and 100% of Greenwalt's personal merchandise proceeds.

Hopeway Bridge was created to assist people during the difficult moments when one unexpected expense can turn into a financial crisis. Reduced work hours, illness, rising utility costs, medical expenses, or other circumstances beyond a person's control can leave families choosing between paying the electric bill, buying groceries, or keeping their water connected.

The organization's mission is to bridge that gap by providing emergency assistance with essential household needs whenever funding is available.

"We believe every person deserves to be treated with dignity and compassion," Hopeway Bridge shared. "Our goal isn't simply to pay a bill—it's to offer hope during a difficult season and encourage people as they work toward stability."

Hopeway Bridge hopes to assist working families, senior citizens living on fixed incomes, individuals facing unexpected medical expenses, and others who are doing everything they can but still find themselves coming up short.

Neon Outpost selected Hopeway Bridge after considering several organizations serving Muhlenberg County. Greenwalt believed the amount raised through one songwriter
