Travis said working across party lines has taught him to listen to different viewpoints and focus on residents’ needs.

“When I knock on doors, I don’t ask them if you’re a Republican or you’re a Democrat,” he said. “All I know is that person’s a taxpayer.”

He credited faith, family and friends as guiding influences and said his grandchildren strengthen his desire to see Muhlenberg County thrive.

If elected, Travis said he would work with the judge-executive and fellow magistrates to address county needs and advocate for his district.

“I know how to be a servant,” Travis said. “I would love to have the opportunity to serve the people of Powderly and Greenville.”
