Maysville Area Chamber Lunch & Learn highlights the impact of Buffalo Trace CASA and opportunities to get involved

Submitted by Shea Bisotti
Maysville Area Chamber of Commerce

MAYSVILLE, KY — The Maysville Area Chamber of Commerce's October Lunch & Learn brought community members together Wednesday, Oct. 21, to learn more about the work of Buffalo Trace CASA and the many ways local residents and businesses can support children in need.

Hosted by Buffalo Trace CASA at its location on

West Second Street in Maysville, the program, Partnering with CASA: Building Stronger Support for Children & Families, offered insight into how CASA volunteers advocate for children who have experienced abuse or neglect.

While the nature of CASA's work requires confidentiality, its impact throughout the community is significant. Volunteers work to ensure children's voices are heard, their needs are considered, and their best interests remain a priority.

During the presentation, attendees learned that CASA served 119 children in Bracken, Fleming, Mason, Nicholas and Robertson counties in 2025. The organization anticipates serving even more children this year, highlighting the growing need for community support and additional volunteers.

As the number of children needing advocacy increases, recruiting and supporting volunteers remains essential to helping CASA meet that need.

Community members and local businesses have several opportunities to get involved. Individuals can explore becoming CASA volunteers, while businesses, organizations and families can support the program through its Christmas initiatives. Opportunities include sponsoring a child for Christmas or organizing a team volunteer day to help wrap gifts for children.

These efforts provide meaningful ways for the community to support children and families while helping CASA continue its mission.

"Sometimes, the most meaningful work happens behind the scenes. CASA is doing important work for children in our community, and while we may not always see the details, the impact matters," said Shea Bisotti, Executive Director of the Maysville Area Chamber of Commerce. "It was wonderful to learn more about what they do and the many ways our businesses and community members can get involved. There are children who need someone in their corner, and we all have an opportunity to help."

The Maysville Area Chamber of Commerce's Lunch & Learn series connects local businesses and community partners through educational programs, networking and opportunities to learn more about the organizations making a difference throughout the region.

Those interested in volunteering, supporting CASA's Christmas program or learning about additional ways to help are encouraged to contact Buffalo Trace CASA directly.
