

US Senate adds Missouri to list of teams with claim to CFB’s 1960 national title

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON — Four teams had claims to the 1960 national championship in college football. The U.S. Senate is adding Missouri to that list.
Sen. Eric Schmitt, R-Mo., introduced a resolution during a meeting Thursday recognizing the Tigers for a claim to the national title. The measure was passed with no objections; resolutions don’t have the force of law and by the chamber’s definition reflect the Senate’s “sentiments,” according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
Still, it adds another odd wrinkle to college football history for a sport decided by polls and rankings decades ago before the arrival of the Bowl Championship Series or today’s College Football Playoff. Missouri hadn’t previously claimed the 1960 team as a national champion.

In an email to The Associated Press on Friday, Missouri team spokesman Dave Matter said the school is “aware” of the resolution but offered no additional comment.
Missouri went 10-1 on the field after beating Navy and Heisman Trophy winner Joe Bellino in the Orange Bowl. The lone loss had come to “Border War” rival Kansas in a game to decide the then-Big Eight Conference title, though the league ordered the Jayhawks to forfeit for using an ineligible player because of recruiting violations.

In a past interview with the The Post-Dispatch, author Brendon Steenbergen — who wrote a book detailing that season — said: “I’ve been beating the drum to try to get the university to recognize it because I think they have as much a right as anyone in the country to be national champions in 1960.”
Minnesota was crowned champion by the AP and United Press International polls, though that took place before the Gophers lost to Washington in the Rose Bowl. The Football Writers Association of America voted Mississippi its post-bowl champion.

The Helms Athletic Foundation, created in 1936 to promote amateur athletics until dissolving in 1983, recognized Washington as its champion. Meanwhile, the Litkenhous Rating system chose Iowa with its mathematical formula utilizing scoring margins and opponent strength, according to The Athletic.

Great Bargains!!

Week of Sale:

- Place your Messenger-Inquirer ad in time to advertise at least one day to advance as well as the day of the sale. List large items and children's equipment individually. Give as many details as you can in your sale ad. A better ad draws a bigger crowd and allows you to get the best price for your merchandise.
- Organize, organize, organize!! Most shoppers won't waste time digging through piles.
- Price all items using your Messenger-Inquirer pricing labels or color-coded stickers. Keep prices low.
- Gather plenty of shopping bags.
- Round up $50-$60 in small bills and change. One roll each of nickels, dimes and quarters, $20 of fives and $20 of ones should work.

Night Before:

- Place Messenger-Inquirer neon orange signs with date, address and directional arrows to show the way to your sale.

- Place Messenger-Inquirer orange balloons on your mailbox or on a stake at the end of your driveway.
- Position large items near the door so that you can place them by the road when you open for business.

Sale Day:

- Open for business early.
- Say hello and be friendly to everyone who comes in.
- To feel safe and secure, at least two people should work the sale.
- Keep extra change and revenues from the sale locked up in the house.
- Be willing to negotiate prices. If you don't like someone's offer, ALWAYS make a counter offer. If you can't reach an agreement, take their name and number. If the item doesn't sell, you can call them back later.

What Sells Best?

- Baby Equipment: cribs, furniture, strollers, playpens, high chairs, walkers & exersaucers, swings, crib bedding, toys, etc.

- Baby & children's clothing; Be sure to list sizes in your ad.
- Antiques & Collectibles.
- Household Furniture.
- Household Items: curtains, curtain rods, bedding, dishes, Tupperware, appliances, etc.
- Home Interior: vases, framed pictures, etc.
- Tools.
- Lawn mowers.

After Sale:

- If you have large unsold merchandise, place a classified ad in the Messenger-Inquirer to sell the remaining items.
- If you wish to donate unsold items to charity, remember that most donations are tax deductible. Ask for a receipt.
- Be a good neighbor. When the sale is over dispose of your signs and tidy up.
