stretch against California, Clemson and SMU ended those dreams.

The late skid also impacted U of L's bowl destination. Although being projected to go to one of the ACC's priority bowls, the Cards wound up playing in the lower-tier Boca game against a team that finished second in the MAC. Not exactly a prime time matchup, as the poorly-played, chaotic game proved. Louisville had field goal and conversion kicks blocked, converted just 1-of-9 third downs and could have easily suffered another close defeat had the Rockets not cooperated with a Boca Bowl record 14 penalties for 100 yards. "Our guys play hard and work hard, our coaches do as well," Brohm said after the bowl. "We're always going to try to find ways to improve. How can we win the close games? But when you play against good teams and really good coaches, it's not always going to happen. So I am proud that we were able to get 10, nine and nine wins.

"Do we want to improve on that? Sure we do. But it's going to take a lot of work and it's going to take us recruiting and getting guys and developing our team. All that is going to matter if we want to play at the highest level and try to find a way to make the playoffs. It's not easy, but that's what our goal is and we're going to strive to get that done."

Most notable in that group are Kurisky and Boykins. As a part-time starter, Kurisky caught 28 passes for 157 yards and a touchdown in 11 games. Boykins, a converted receiver from North Hardin High School, shared the running back position with freshman Braxton Jennings due to injuries, rushing for 101 yards and a touchdown in the 41-0 win over Kentucky.

programs will collaborate to develop innovative approaches for serving communities.

The program also will include the development of online training modules to help address staffing issues in public libraries facing challenges in a social work context, as well as an international symposium focused on social work-informed library services. "Public librarians have provided resources to community members without cost for more than a decade and, through reference and referral services, have often connected people to other organizations," Real said. "Connecting public libraries to social work services is a natural step forward, since people with the greatest needs already trust librarians."
