have impacted the community in a positive way.

As Wooldridge concluded his remarks, he left guests questions to ponder in determining ‘where we go from here.’

What is our community’s greatest strength?

What is our greatest challenge?

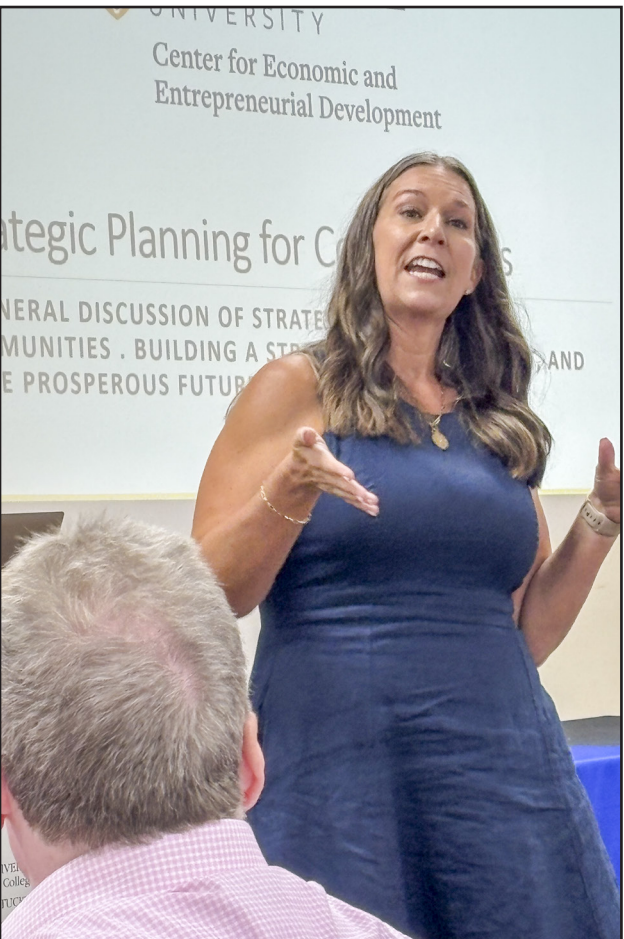

What opportunities should we pursue?

What should our community accomplish in the next five years?

What is one action we can take?

Wooldridge also left the group with a final thought: The future of a community is shaped by the decisions its people make today.

The next Webster County Chamber of Commerce meetings is planned for September 23, at the extension office in Dixon.

UNITED COMMUNITY BANK sponsored Wednesday’s Chamber lunch.
