

DAMAGE,

“We had about four vehicles damaged...or that’s what it looks like as of now (presstime),” the judge said.

Marcum explained the roof of a building used to house recycled materials on Landfill Rd. east of Jamestown was apparently torn away during the storm.

“It blew the roof across the road...and the roof landed on some trucks,” he said. “We’re going to get in there, and see what kind of damage we have.”

Judge Marcum

lamented the damage of “some really nice trucks we use all the time,” but was also concerned about any disruption of any county services—such as recycling bin/trailer retrieval.

“We’re going to try to do the best we can,” he said. “We just ask people to be patient with us.”

Marcum recalled how last Tuesday he told participants of a Storm Spotter’s class at the Russell County Courthouse how he has experienced four, different, local FEMA events as county judge.

“That may be a record,” he said. “It’s important to always be prepared and stay safe...and sometimes it hits close to home.”

Daniel Wilson, Chief Forecaster of the Storm Alert Center, reported traffic lights were out at the intersection of U.S. 127 and KY. 80 in Russell Springs Saturday in what may have been a weather-related incident around the same time of damage at the recycling center.
