OBITUARIES

Carole Ann Lovelass

Carole Ann Loveless, 79, Nancy, passed away Wednesday, June 10, 2026 at Hospice of Lake Cumberland Jean Waddle Care Center.

She was born on July 4, 1946, in Public, KY, to the late Bishop Inabnitt and Telvis Eaton Inabnitt. A woman of deep and abiding faith, she was a devoted member of each church she attended and lived her Christian beliefs each day through her love, kindness, and service to others. She cherished her church family and found great joy in singing, teaching Sunday school, and helping with Vacation Bible School. Her compassionate heart was especially evident in her concern for underprivileged children, and she was always willing to lend a helping hand to those in need.

She embraced life with gratitude and enthusiasm. She enjoyed tending to her garden and traveling. Together, Carole and Doug traveled to all 48 states except for Rhode Island; some of those were bus tours that they thoroughly enjoyed. She loved spending meaningful time with family and friends. She loved being with her brothers and sisters, but nothing brought her greater happiness than being with her grandchildren, who held a special place in her heart and were among her greatest blessings. Her grandchildren, DJ and Marissa, have many fond memories of the times spent with their "Ninnie", at the place they called home.

She and her beloved husband, Doug, of almost fifty-nine years, dreamed of having a large family. Although their journey did not unfold as they had once imagined, they remained steadfast in faith, trusting God's plan for their lives. Their prayers were lovingly answered when they were blessed with their son, Daniel, a gift from God who became one of the greatest joys and proudest accomplishments of Carole's life.

Blessed with friendships that spanned generations, she had a remarkable ability to make others feel welcomed, valued, and loved. Among her dearest friends was Beulah Coner, whose friendship she treasured throughout the years, and Beulah was a strong influence in Carole's life. One of the proudest moments for her was hearing Beulah say that she was one of her best friends. The bond they shared was a testament to her warm spirit and the genuine love she extended to those around her.

She will be remembered for her sense of humor, her easy laugh, unwavering faith, gentle heart, generous spirit, and the love she shared so freely with her family, friends, and community. Her legacy of kindness, devotion, and Christian love will continue to live on in the lives of all who were blessed to know her.

She is survived by her loving husband, Dorvin D. Loveless, whom she married on September 30, 1967 in Oneida, TN; one son, Daniel Morgan (Michelle) Loveless, Nancy; two grandchildren, Marissa Loveless and DJ Loveless; two brothers, Ed (Rhonda) Inabnitt and Jeff Inabnitt, both of Somerset; one brother-in-law, Phillip Shipp, Somerset; one sister, Betty Skidmore; and several other nieces, nephews, other family members and friends who are saddened by her passing.

Along with her parents, she was preceded in death by one sister, Tamara Jill "Tammy" Shipp; and one sister-in-law, Barb Bullock Inabnitt.

Funeral services were held 11:00 am Saturday, June 13, 2026 at Hopeful Baptist Church with Bro. Valando Loveless and Bro. Brad Shipp officiating. Burial followed at Hopeful Cemetery, Nancy. Pallbearers were Daniel Loveless, DJ Loveless, Chad Shipp, Mike Loveless, Brian Loveless, Larry Loveless, Amos Gaskin, Jonathan Gaskin and Bobby West. Honorary pallbearer was Lemuel Gaskin.

Expressions of sympathy be made to the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in memory of Carole Loveless.

Take charge of your debt, one step at a time

If you're dealing with debt, you're far from alone. More than 80% of U.S. households carry some form of debt (2025 Federal Reserve report), and since 2019, total household debt for Americans has increased more than 31%, to $18.59 trillion.

While debt can help you achieve important goals, such as buying a home or getting an education, it can also create strain on your life and finances. If you only make minimum payments, for example, you'll hold debt longer and pay more in interest.

Having a clear debt reduction plan can help you take control, reduce anxiety and even save money.

Know your debt. The first step is understanding what you owe. Make a comprehensive list of all your debts, including credit cards, mortgages, auto loans, student loans and medical bills. For each one, note the total amount owed, the interest rate and your minimum payment requirements.

Next, add it all up to see your total debt load. Then calculate your debt-to-income ratio by dividing your total monthly debt payments by your gross monthly income. A good rule of thumb is to keep this ratio below 35% if you have a mortgage or 20% if you don't.

Manage what you owe. Now that you have the big picture, look for opportunities to reorganize your debt more effectively. Perhaps you can refinance existing loans at lower interest rates, consolidate multiple debts into a single payment or transfer high-interest credit card balances to cards that offer lower or 0% introductory rates for up to 12 months.

These strategies won't reduce the total amount you owe, but they can make your debt more manageable and potentially save you money on interest. Just watch out for fees and make sure you understand new terms before making changes.

Set your payment target. Start by identifying your required minimum payments across all debts. Missing these can trigger fees and penalties and damage your credit score, so treat them as non-negotiable expenses in your budget.

Next, look at your budget to identify any funds available after covering all essential expenses. Consider how much of this surplus to put toward paying down debt versus saving for other goals. Remember that building an emergency fund and saving for retirement are also important priorities that shouldn't be sidelined.

If you have no surplus, you may need to cut back on things like eating out, clothes shopping, on-line subscriptions, entertainment or expensive vacations while you bring your debt in line. Consider an additional part-time job for extra income to pay off your debt sooner.

Prioritize your debt. Finally, decide which debts to tackle first with any extra payments. One approach is to focus on paying off the debt with the highest interest rate first, which minimizes the total interest you'll pay over time. Alternately, you can target the smallest balance first to help you build momentum and motivation.

Taking control of your debt doesn't happen overnight, but with a clear strategy, you can make steady progress toward your financial goals.
